I was in sixth grade when I experienced my first travel through time. Our teacher, Mrs. Brown, had found an old set of plans for a time machine. As a class project we built the machine and to our delight it worked! We decided to travel to the Stone Age and visit with the caveman. Our second trip was to ancient Egypt where we witnessed the burial procession of an Egyptian Pharaoh. Our final destination was ancient Greece.

Since I was mechanically inclined I was nominated to operate our time machine. We would have continued our travels but I pushed the wrong button...and our six grade class disappeared!

When I returned from my adventures, I completed high school in San Diego and college at the University of Arizona. After raising two kids and traveling the world with my mom, Payne and Linda Johnson, and other amazing people, I decided to write about the ancient worlds that once existed.

I have also been fascinated with antiques...who owned them? Where did they come from? If antiques could talk, we would learn amazing things about the past! Wouldn't it be awesome if our heirlooms could take us back in time and we could personally experience the history of the world?

I hope you enjoy the Leap Behind Series and treasure those heirlooms from Grandma!
